

Last 2 Weeks to CET Second Attempt: Your Final Push to JBIMS, SIMSREE & Top B-Schools

The CET second attempt is on 9th May. With almost 2 weeks left, this is not the time to panic — this is the time to perform.

These next 14 days can change your entire journey.

A great CET score can open the doors to dream B-schools like JBIMS, SIMSREE, PUMBA, Welingkar, K J Somaiya and many more. If your first attempt didn't go as planned, this is your chance to bounce back stronger.

Why These 2 Weeks Matter So Much

Most students think success comes from studying for months.

That helps.

But rankings often change in the last 10–15 days, when serious aspirants become disciplined, focused, and strategic.

The student who uses these 2 weeks properly can outperform someone who wasted the previous 2 months.

Mindset for the Final Stretch

Forget your first attempt score.

Forget what others are doing.

Forget self-doubt.

Only one question matters now:

What can you do today to improve your score on 9th May?

This is your final shot. Treat it like one.

Smart Strategy for Last 14 Days

1. Focus on Mock Tests + Analysis

Give regular mocks in actual exam timing.

But remember:

Mocks don't improve scores. Analysis does.

After every mock, review:

- Which questions took too much time?
- Where did accuracy drop?
- Which topics are repeatedly weak?

- What should be skipped in exam?

2. Strengthen High-Scoring Areas

Don't try to master everything now.

Double down on sections where you already perform well.

Turn a 20-mark strength into a 35-mark weapon.

3. Daily Quant Practice

Arithmetic, Algebra, Numbers, DI, Approximation.

Keep concepts sharp and speed high.

4. Logical Reasoning = Daily Habit

Puzzles, arrangements, coding-decoding, statements, input-output.

Consistency matters more than volume.

5. Verbal Needs Accuracy

Practice:

- Reading comprehension
- Vocabulary in context
- Para jumbles
- Grammar basics

Biggest Mistakes to Avoid

Studying random new topics daily

Comparing scores with friends

Giving mocks without review

Ignoring health and sleep

Negative thinking after one bad test

If You Want JBIMS / SIMSREE...

Then act like someone who deserves that seat.

That means:

- Discipline every day
- Full concentration
- No excuses

- No wasted weekends
- No half-effort study sessions

Dream colleges are earned in these pressure moments.

Remember This

Two weeks are enough to improve speed.

Two weeks are enough to improve accuracy.

Two weeks are enough to change percentile.

Two weeks are enough to change your admission result.

But only if you give your absolute best.

Final Message from TTP

On 9th May, walk into the exam hall knowing:

“I gave everything in the last 14 days.”

That confidence itself adds marks.

This is your last chance. Use it fully.

Push harder. Stay sharper. Stay hungry.

JBIMS, SIMSREE and top B-schools are still possible.

Now go earn it.
