

MBA CET 2026: Last 7 Days Strategy to Maximize Your Score

With just one week left for MBA CET 2026, this is not the time to panic—it's the time to optimize.

The difference between a 99+ %ile and an average score in CET is often decided in these final days. The goal now is simple:

Stay sharp, not exhausted

Revise smart, not everything

Practice strategically, not randomly

Let's break down exactly how your last 7 days should look like.

1. The Golden Rule: Don't Learn Anything New

At this stage, starting new topics will:

- Confuse your existing concepts
- Lower your confidence
- Waste valuable revision time

Focus only on:

- Topics you've already studied
 - Frequently asked concepts
 - Your strong + moderate areas

2. How Many Mocks Should You Give?

Ideal number: 3–4 full-length mocks in the last week

Suggested Plan:

- Day 7–5: 2 mocks (alternate days)
- Day 4–2: 1–2 mocks
- Last 1–2 days: No full mocks (only light practice)

Important:

After every mock, spend 2–3 hours analyzing:

- Which sections consumed more time?
- Where did you make silly mistakes?
- Which questions should you have skipped?

Mock analysis > Mock giving

3. PYQs Are Your Biggest Weapon

MBA CET is known for repeating patterns.

Solve previous year questions (PYQs) from:

- Logical Reasoning (especially puzzles & arrangements)
- Quant (Arithmetic, Numbers, DI sets)
- Verbal (RC tone-based, para jumbles)

How to Use PYQs Smartly:

- Solve them in timer mode

- Identify repeating question types
 - Build your own “last-minute formula + pattern list”

4. Section-wise Last Week Strategy

Logical Reasoning (Highest Weightage)

- Practice sets daily (8–10 sets minimum)
- Focus on:
 - Seating arrangements
 - Blood relations
 - Coding-decoding

Aim: Improve selection of the right sets, not solving everything

Quantitative Aptitude

- Revise formulas (Arithmetic + Numbers + Algebra basics)
- Practice calculation speed
- Focus on:
 - Percentages
 - Ratio
 - Time & Work

Avoid getting stuck on lengthy questions

Verbal Ability

- Do 1–2 RCs daily
- Revise:
 - Grammar rules
 - Para jumbles strategy

CET verbal is speed-based, not too tricky

5. Don't Over-Exhaust Yourself

This is where most students go wrong.

Avoid:

- Giving mocks daily
- Studying 12–14 hours suddenly
- Comparing with others

Instead:

- Study 6–8 focused hours
- Take proper breaks
- Sleep at least 6–7 hours

A fresh mind performs better than an overworked one.

6. Build Your Exam Strategy

Before the exam, be clear on:

- Which section will you start with?
 - How much time per section?
 - What is your attempt strategy?

Final Thoughts

MBA CET is not about knowing everything—it's about:

Speed + Selection + Accuracy

In this last week:

- Trust your preparation
- Stay consistent
- Keep your mind calm

You've already done the hard work.

Now it's time to execute smartly.

Bonus Tip from The Top Percentile

Top scorers don't attempt the most questions.

They attempt the right questions.
